About the Department

The Department of geography was established during the academic year of 1994-1995, with a few guest teachers as faculty member. During the first year only pass course stream was started. From the second year (1995-96) first batch of three year honours course were admitted. The department is situated on the 2nd floor of the new U.G.C. building of the college. This department has two laboratories, one storeroom cum staff room for both teaching and non-teaching members. Apart from this one GIS laboratory is being set up with proper facilities and soil environment laboratory. In 2016 this department started post-graduation course. During its modest age of twenty-five years, the department has drawn attention of the students of the districts and apart, and at present it is the most sought after department among the students who want to take admission in geography honours and post-graduation.

Theme of the Seminar

Population, Development and Environment

In contemporary world, population, environment and development is inseparable. There are major intimately interlinked issues of population, environment, and development. If current predictions of population growth prove accurate and patterns of human activity on the planet remain unchanged, science and technology alone may not be able to prevent either irreversible degradation of the environment or continued poverty for much of the world. In India, population, environment and development issues have emerged as a prime challenge to development planners due to the recent expansion of the human population. For decades, India has been facing the adverse consequences of gradual degradation of environment. Rapid exploitation of the available resources has resulted into environmental degradation. It is predominant in urban area because of the rapid growth of urban population due to migration from rural to urban areas and rapid process of industrialization. This seminar focuses on the intricacies of the relationship among population, environment, and development in India by investigating the complex relationship of different indicators of population, development and environment. The major sub-themes are given below:

Sub themes :-

1. Population: Contemporary Issues and Challenges
2. Development: Contemporary Issues and Challenges
3. Environment: Contemporary Issues and Challenges
4. Population, Development and Environment: Linkage.
